

February '06 - Tradeshow Month at American Soil Technologies.

American Soil Technologies, Inc. (ASTI) participates in four back-to-back tradeshows in February.

The annual North American Grain Congress was held in San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 6-7. The NAGCC is a joint conference of the National Association of Wheat Growers and the National Sorghum Producers. ASTI was part of a select group of 20 companies exhibiting at the NAGCC this year. In addition to its full line of linear and crosslink agricultural polymers, ASTI featured the Sircle Saver Sack™, a revolutionary pivot irrigation technology. The Sircle Saver Sack™ prevents ruts, minimizes gear box damage to pivot equipment and is of particular interest to pivot irrigation grain growers.

ASTI proudly debuted two new turf products – Soil Medic™ and Soil Therapy™ – at the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) annual Golf Industry Show in Atlanta, Georgia Feb. 9-11.

Soil Medic™ is a biologically available N-P-K nutrient, and Soil Therapy™ is a multifunctional biomass product featuring simple and complex carbon, humus and humic fragments. These products work in conjunction with ASTI's injectable polymer, Nutrimoist® L, and M216 Liquid Injector machine, providing a biologically balanced approach to turf care.

ASTI's new products were well received at the Golf Industry Show.

The World Ag Expo, held each year in Tulare, California, fell on Feb. 14-16.

ASTI exhibited its complete line of agricultural products, as well as the ever-popular Nutrimoist® Crystals, a superabsorbent horticultural polymer.

As always, ASTI's products were in great demand at the World Ag Expo.

ASTI participated in the bi-annual Orgill Spring Market in Orlando, Florida Feb. 23-25.

Orgill is the world's largest independent distributor of hardware products to home improvement retailers. Founded in 1847, Orgill carries over 70,000 products, servicing more than 4,000 retailers in 60 countries.

ASTI's Nutrimoist Crystals[®] is a natural fit to Orgill's expansive home improvement product line.
